ONE YEAR, SERVICE MEMBERS.....$4.00
CIVILIANS AND ORGANIZATIONS.....6.00
SINGLE COPIES......20Mounted Pay Subject
Of War Dept. Survey

A STUDY is being made in the War Department as to whether it would be cheaper for the Government to supply horses for officers required to be mounted, or to allow them to own their mounts, as at present. This is the result of the request of Rep. Collins (D. of Miss.).

At the present time all officers required to be mounted are privileged to own a horse or to ride a government-owned mount. In either case, the mount is maintained at the Government expense. In addition to this officers below the grade of major draw $150 a year as mounted pay.

Purpose of Mounted Pay

The purpose of the mounted pay, it is generally understood, is to stimulate the private ownership of superior mounts. Private ownership, in turn, it is felt by many, engenders a strong interest in horses that is essential to the highest efficiency of the mounted services. One opinion is that an officer is not likely to learn as much about horses as he would if he owned horses. The experience of training and supervising the care of the privately-owned mount is believed to be the best method of learning the proper care of the horse, as well as gaining knowledge of the animal's capabilities. The fine points of judging horses and the mastery of horsemanship, it was pointed out, come only as the result of long experience and genuine interest in horses. It is further believed that the mounted services would not attract the high type of officer that they now do if private ownership of horses were abolished.

Cost of Private Mounts

While a few officers purchase their horses through the Remount Service for $165, there are a large number that go further afield for their mounts. Horses purchased from the Remount Service are generally about half thoroughbred, while the ideal officer's mount is usually considered to be about seven-eighths thoroughbred. A young, untrained horse of this character can be purchased for around $500, although there is no set price, while trained horses cost a great deal more. Thus a company officer, to obtain a mount within reach of his income, must buy an untrained horse and school it himself. Also he must bear the risk that the horse will develop faults that could not be predicted, or disabling illness or accident. Once a suitable mount has been secured and trained, its length of service is not certain. The average military life of a horse is placed at 12 years, but in individual cases there is no certainty that an animal will be useful for that period of time. Also other factors enter into the matter, the type of rider, and the service the horse is compelled to give which affect the length of his usefulness.

Officer and Enlisted Men Morale

If an officer were compelled to ride mounts furnished by the Remount Service, it is believed that his morale would be affected and that it would affect the enlisted men's morale as well. The officer, as a leader, has better equipment than the enlisted men. It is expected and it is considered no more than fitting that he should have a better mount, yet if the mounts all came from the Remount Service there would be little if any difference in the quality of the officer's mount and the enlisted man's mount. This would have a deleterious effect on the morale of both, it was pointed out. Also ownership of superior horses by the officers stimulates the enlisted men to try as far as possible to have their mounts

Policy For Exams Set;
Name Selection Body

TWO pronouncements affecting the promotion of officers of the Navy under the new personnel act were issued at the Navy Department this week. One of these was the naming of the line-up of the selection board which will meet May 15 to recommend 43 officers for promotion to lieutenant commander, and the other the issuance of a memorandum giving the policy to be followed with regard to lieutenants who fail upon examination for promotion.

The members of the selection board are:

Rear Adm. M. M. Taylor
Rear Adm. J. R. Y. Blakely
Rear Adm. D. F. Sellers
Rear Adm. F. H. Brumby
Rear Adm. H. V. Butler
Rear Adm. H. E. Yarnell
Rear Adm. O. G. Murfin
Rear Adm. W. R. Sexton
Rear Adm. W. D. Leahy
Lt. Comdr. W. I. Causey, jr., recorder.

The memorandum, issued by the Director of Officer Personnel, Bureau of Navigation, dealing with officers who fail upon examination for promotion to lieutenant commander states that all lieutenants, with the exception of those in the Washington area, will be examined before a supervisory board. If they fail to qualify they will then be ordered before a Statutory Board and should they then fail they will be suspended for six months with loss of numbers, after which they may take the final examination. All those who fail will be retired as of June 30, 1932.

As the new law allowing retirement of officers of long service after failure upon examination does not apply to the Staff Corps, final action in such cases will be held up until Congress "has had an opportunity to consider" (Please turn to Next Page)

Proposed Cut in Battleship
Size Threatens Naval Parity

THERE is one phase of the naval agreement reached by Great Britain, France and Italy, which though receiving but scant notice from American editors, is of great moment to the future of the United States Navy and merits the most careful attention of the American Government.

In the memorandum of last week given out by the British Foreign Office, outlining the points of agreement in the Franco-Italian Naval Agreement fostered by the British Government, it is stated that France and Italy intend to begin the construction of two capital ships each prior to the 31st of December, 1936. The French and Italian Governments undertake to limit the size of these replacement capital ships to 23,333 tons each, and the British Government has undertaken to join the two continental countries in a demand that replacement capital ships of other nations in the future shall be materially reduced below the standard of 35,000 tons set in the Washington Treaty limiting Naval Armaments of 1922. It is likely that the proposal to reduce the size of future capital ships will be agreeable to Japan.

Advanced a step toward world peace and as a method of cutting down naval expenditures, the proposal, as will be seen, would simply, if carried through, make true parity with Great Britain impossible, increase the relative strength of the other navies of

Starring of Officers

BEGINNING on Page 770 of this issue, the Army and Navy Journal publishes the list of captains starred and unstarred in the manner prescribed in the proposed War Department accelerated promotion plan. The fact should be kept in mind that the list as published is compiled from the promotion list of July 1, 1930, and the stars are placed as they would have been if the bill had gone into effect on that date. If the bill should be enacted new computations would be made to the effective date of the bill.

Next week the Journal will publish the list of colonels, lieutenant colonels and majors starred as of July 1, 1930.

Gen. Hagood Favors
One Artillery Force

ONE of the ardent advocates of consolidation of the Coast Artillery and Field Artillery, a subject which is now being studied by the War Department with the object of presenting a report on the subject to Congress, is Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood, USA, commanding general of the 7th Corps Area.

Six years ago Gen. Hagood wrote a vigorous article in which he strongly urged the reuniting of the two arms. This week he told the Army and Navy Journal that "My subsequent experience as a commander of an infantry division and as corps area commander confirms all that I have previously said upon this matter."

Gen. Hagood is particularly well qualified on the subject of artillery for he was commissioned originally in the Artillery upon his graduation from

Court Limits Meaning
Of Dependent-Wife Act

A DECISION of possible far-reaching importance to officers of the service drawing allowances for a dependent wife, was handed down by the United States Court of Claims this week.

In the case of Nathan C. Robey v. The United States, the court ruled that the plaintiff, formerly a lieutenant in the Medical Corps of the Navy, could not recover dependent allowances when in fact the officer's wife was separated from him, notwithstanding the fact that the law specifically declares that "the term 'dependent' shall include at all times and in all places a lawful wife."

Although the particular question of the fact of dependency decided in the instant case would not have very wide effect as a precedent, the words of the court in ruling that the spirit and not the letter of the law should govern, leaves the door wide open for the Comptroller General to withhold the allowances paid to officers whose wives might have some outside source of income.

The instant case was aggravated by evidence of the fact that the officer had deserted his wife, and the court undoubtedly gave much weight to this in deciding the case, but unfortunately the words of their opinion give a basis for extending the principle of going behind the letter of the law and looking as to the fact of dependency. In view of the practice of the General

Army Studying Both
Pay and Promotion

IN spite of the recent apparent emphasis on the subject of promotion in the Army, it is known that plans are under way in both the War and Navy Departments to assure Congressional attention on the subject of service pay.

In the Navy, with the subject of promotion already settled to the satisfaction of Departmental authorities by the passage of the Line Personnel Bill, a pay plan, paralleling that of the Interdepartmental Board, is being considered, informally, for presentation to the Seventy-second Congress.

In the Army it is known that Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the Chief of Staff, is vitally interested in the subject of service pay, and while recent pronouncements have seemed to have emphasized the subject of promotion, he has not lost sight of the need of an upward revision of the pay schedules.

It is assuring to note that the Army Pay Committee is still busy at its task. The data compiled by its members is exhaustive and will be of inestimable value in presenting the case to Congress. The problem has been studied from every conceivable angle, assuring Congress and the Army of a fair and adequate presentation of the problem.

The attitude of Gen. MacArthur is well known. When he first arrived in this country on his way to Washington to take up his new duties as Chief of Staff he said in a statement to the Army and Navy Journal: "I am gratified to hear of the progress that has been made by the Interdepartmental Pay Board. In this connection an increase in service pay is one of the most necessary considerations at the present time and I strongly favor it." Since that time his interest in service pay and the work of the Army Pay Committee has been unflagging.

In the meanwhile, however, Army discussion centers around the promotion bill. Much conjecture has arisen as to just how much immediate promotion would occur on the effective date if the bill sponsored by the Chief of Staff should be enacted. No accurate data could be computed on that, however, as the "starring" process would have to be recomputed for whatever date the bill would be effective.

It is possible, nevertheless, to tell exactly what would have occurred had the bill become effective on July 1, 1930, for full statistics have been worked up on that by the General Staff.

Had the bill become effective on that date 226 lieutenant colonels, down to and including Lt. Col. John C. Pegram, Cav., would have been promoted to be colonels. A total of 439 majors, down to Maj. Cresswell Garlington, CE. (No. 1016 on the July 1, 1930, promotion list) would have been promoted to be lieutenant colonels.

In the grade of captain, 960 would have been promoted to be majors, bringing the promotions down to and including Capt. Alfred F. King, AC (No. 3263 on the July 1, 1930, promotion list). The last first lieutenant in the World War hump and the last first lieutenant to have completed ten years commissioned service was 1st Lt. George W. Read, jr., Cav. (No. 7246, on the July 1, 1930 promotion list). He and the 1,575 first lieutenants ahead of him would all have been promoted to be captains. A total of 741 second lieutenants, down to and including 2nd Lt. Joseph G. Hopkins, AC (No. 9147 on the July 1, 1930, promotion list), the last second lieutenant to have completed three years' commissioned serv-

Editors Praise Prompt Army, Navy and Marine Relief Work in Managua

EEDITORIAL comment, in general, has nothing but praise for the American agencies participating in the rescue and relief work in earthquake ravaged Managua.

"AID was prompt," states the Philadelphia Inquirer (Republican). "The presence of American Marines was one fortunate circumstance. They took immediate command of the situation and went about restoring order until the Red Cross and other agencies of relief could function. With characteristic energy President Hoover hurried to the island a fleet of ships and aircraft."

"T IS A calamity of the first magnitude," observes the Brockton, Mass., Times (Independent). "The United States is rushing Army, Navy and Red Cross aid to the survivors as fast as possible. The Marines stationed there have taken over the situation and are handling it in good fashion * * *"

"THE only consolation is that while the flames were still fierce, help was forthcoming," holds the New York American (Independent). "From the United States five ships set out at once. Medical supplies were rushed by airplanes. Three cruisers were hurriedly loaded with food and supplies. The Red Cross, the State Department and the Army and Navy co-operated to give every possible help. * * *

"America swiftly responded with help. Noblesse oblige dictated her action; not self-interest, but a humanitarian regard."

"ONCE more the tremendous revolution effected in the saving of human life through the coming of the airplane has been demonstrated in a dramatic manner," states the Montreal, Canada, Daily Star. "The sudden catastrophe that has overtaken Managua, the capital city of the Republic of Nicaragua, in Central America, would undoubtedly have been attended by a far greater loss of life and increase in the sufferings of the survivors but for the fact that airplanes belonging to the American Fleet were immediately available in large numbers to carry doctors, Red Cross nurses, and supplies to the stricken city. * * *

"It was extremely fortunate for the people of Managua also that there was still on the spot a detachment of U. S. Marines. They were immediately set to work, and are credited with having done yeoman service in rescuing the wounded and in preventing looting, in keeping some semblance of order and in restoring some form of discipline out of the chaos wrought by the earthquake * * *"

"THE earthquake in Nicaragua appears * * * to have been one of the worst catastrophes of recent years," says the Albany, N. Y., News (Independent). "The dead are uncounted. Managua, the capital city of Nicaragua, has been destroyed. The tragedy arouses the sympathy of all America and this nation will be prompt in measures of relief to its neighbor."

"President Hoover immediately took steps to give aid by ordering the Army and Navy Red Cross to cooperate in relief measures for Managua. Marines, stationed in that country, will act of course to do all possible to aid the stricken region."

"WITH the first flashed news of this catastrophe, every available agency at the command of the United States Government—Red Cross, Marines, the Navy and Army engineers surveying the route of a possible canal across Nicaragua—was rushed to the scene of the disaster to work feverishly for rescue and relief," says the Port Huron, Mich., Times Herald (Independent).

"Those nearest to the scene awaited no orders to bring aid and relief, but plunged desperately into the work."

"The much maligned Marines took charge of the situation and have been performing most of the work of rescue."

"The Army engineers deserted their work of surveying a canal to help in rescuing the injured and caring for both living and dead."

"The nation of which all Latin America is supposed to be suspicious and resentful is pouring out its means and sending its men and women without stint or thought of reward to help one of its little neighbors in the time of its great trouble."

"VICTIMS of Nicaragua's worst earthquake are getting prompt, wholehearted aid from the United States," says the New York World Telegram.

"Directly President Hoover heard of the disaster he mobilized Government agencies at Washington for relief work. Army and Navy officials were summoned to conference. Warships and airplanes were dispatched. United States marines, engineers, medical officers, diplomats, consuls got orders to give every assistance * * *"

"HARDLY had the first news of the earthquake disaster in Managua reached America before President Hoover had directed the Red Cross to extend immediate aid to the stricken Nicaraguan capital," holds the Northampton, Mass., Gazette (Republican). "Four naval vessels were ordered to the scene, and the cooperation of the Army was also requested, in rendering prompt and efficient assistance to the injured and helpless."

Ft. Benning Maneuvers

Ft. Benning, Ga.—The first phase of the Fourth Corps Area's rigorous schedule of exercises got under way here this week with a program of one-sided regimental maneuvers, and fire problems for each company or similar unit.

The post has taken on the proportions of a war-time concentration camp with more than 100 officers and 2,100 men from all over the corps area here living under canvas for the duration of the annual exercises which will last until May 2. Troops from eight other army posts are concentrated in "Camp Leonard Wood," a city of tents built to house the visitors and named for the former commander of the Southeastern Department of the Army.

The visiting units quartered at Camp Wood under command of Brig. Gen. G. H. Estes, include—8th Inf., Ft. Screven, Ga., and Ft. Moultrie, S. C.; 69th CA (AA), Ft. McClellan, Ala.; 16th FA, Ft. Bragg, N. C.; 22nd Inf., Ft. McPherson, Ga.; 4th Tank Co., Ft. McClellan, Ga.; 22nd Obs. Sq., Maxwell Field, Ala., and 2nd Balloon Co., Ft. Bragg, N. C.

In spite of the arduous program of military events the Ft. Benning personnel and the visitors have been able to find some time for social activity. One of the outstanding events of the week was the dinner given Monday in the Officers' Club by the commanding general of the Infantry School to Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, commanding general, Fourth Corps Area.

The horse will be king on Friday and Saturday of this week when the Ft. Benning Horse Show—an institution in the state—will give the visitors an opportunity to see and participate in this brilliant event.

Sgt. French Retires

Portland, Ore.—On March 31, Mr. Sgt. Elbert L. French, DEMI, was placed on the retired list after completing thirty years of service, which includes a tour of duty in the Philippines.

Sgt. French first enlisted in the Infantry, in 1903. He has served 19 years in the recruiting service. All of Sgt. French's discharge certificates bear the notation, "Character Excellent." The General Order announcing his retirement says, "The special attention of the command is invited to the unusually excellent record of this soldier, his loyalty, military bearing, attention to duty, and personal conduct being exemplary and his efficiency always of an outstanding character. To sum up his service in a word, his record has been such as to make him an example worthy of emulation by all soldiers."

Private Mounts

perform up to the high standard set by the officers.

Until recently an officer was allowed two private mounts, and mounted pay for two horses was $200. It is a matter of firm belief that an officer should have two mounts, and many of them do, some having even more, but only one may be taken care of by the Government under the present regulations. An officer, riding in the field all day, may need more than one mount.

Authorization for Private Mounts

The number of officers required to be mounted has been reduced as late as February, 1930, by Change No. 1, AR 605-130. There have been applications made to change the regulation to allow more officers to be mounted, the applications holding that the regulation was too stringent. While the trend is to cut down on the number of mounted officers allowed, the actual need, it is pointed out, is for more.

Polo

The value of polo to the officer has been questioned in certain congressional quarters, but it is felt by many, including the Secretary of War, that it is a valuable adjunct to the training of the officer. In no other way, it is pointed out, can an officer become as familiar with the limitations and capabilities of the horse. Besides that, it combines with the elements of pleasure and sportsmanship the dash, courage and quick thought so essential to the military make-up.

Knowledge of the Mount

One of the essentials of the officer attached to a mounted unit is a thorough knowledge of the horse, it was pointed out, and any factor aiding this knowledge can be counted as a distinct advantage. The degree with which private mounts aid this, it is believed, is one which cannot be overlooked in developing any mounted unit to its highest efficiency. A proper knowledge of the care of the horse is necessary to the company officer, because a mounted unit is dependent on its horses for its mobility. It was pointed out that such a unit is effective directly in proportion to the condition of its mounts. As noted above, the ownership of a mount is considered as an aid to the knowledge of the officer. Hence, it was pointed out, the private ownership of horses has a distinct bearing on the efficiency of the mounted unit aside from the advantages of the effect on morale.

Attention is called to the fact that the provisions of general law regarding retirement of officers who fail upon examination are applicable to these officers.

Scrutiny of the members of the May selection board reveals the fact that four of the nine rear admirals chosen were members of the last board. Rear Adms. Blakely, Sellers, Yarnell and Sexton having served last Fall. This is a distinct departure from the procedure in the past of naming, if practicable, entirely different personnel for succeeding boards.

Another feature noticed is the youthfulness of the board. Only Adm. Taylor and Adm. Blakely are of the upper half of rear admirals, and all except the former have had less than five years of flag rank. Inasmuch as the younger flag officers have had more opportunity for personal contact with the lieutenant commanders coming up for selection than the older officers a board of this general make-up was freely predicted.

The memorandum dealing with examination of lieutenants appears below:

"The Bureau has learned that there exists in some quarters a measure of uncertainty relative to the procedure to be followed in the examination of the large group of officers to be examined shortly for promotion to lieutenant commander.

"Each officer in the group (excepting those in the Washington area) will be examined before a supervisory board. After the papers are marked, such officers as may be reported not qualified will then be ordered to appear before a Statutory Board for further examination; if again reported on unfavorably by the Statutory Board, suspension from promotion for six (6) months with loss of numbers, will follow with final examination after the period of suspension. Since the Personnel Act provides that all retirements under its provisions will be effective as of June 30 of the current fiscal year, it is anticipated that final action will be completed in the case of disqualification on examination prior to June 30, 1932, with retirement on that date.

"In this connection, the attention of all concerned is invited to the fact that the provisions of general law relative to professional or physical failure on examination are applicable to this group of officers.

"As for officers of the Staff Corps, since the new law does not provide for retirement of officers of long service after failure upon professional examination, final action in such cases will be deferred until such time as the Congress has had an opportunity to consider and act upon proposed remedial legislation."

Smaller Battleships

the world and result in higher expenditures for this country.

Though seemingly on the surface but a detail in the whole plan of naval limitation, the demand hits at the very backbone of our national defense. This for the reason that it is the old proposal to abolish the battleship, dressed in but thin disguise. Reduction in the size of capital ships to any extent below 35,000 tons would mean the abolishment of the battleship as far as we are concerned, but would not have the same effect as to Great Britain.

We can not build a vessel of less than 35,000 tons in size, which will have the cruising radius necessary to us and be as strong as a British vessel of the same size, for Great Britain with her many scattered bases, does not need the cruising radius we must have and can emphasize the other factors in warship construction.

It might very well be possible that such a standard may be set which will be large enough to permit British ships operating in connection with their many bases to project their naval strength to any area which might conceivably become a critical area for the Empire and at the same time such maximum limit might be so small as to prevent the American Navy from being projected into the same or other areas that might conceivably become critical areas. With navies, particularly capital ship fleets, the situation is somewhat like long distance flights with airplanes. With numerous airports, with fuel storage, machine shops and mechanics and supplies, squadrons of fighting planes may be moved over large distances without sacrificing any of the characteristics or crew that they are designed to have. But if there be no intermediate airports they must give up the attempt to reach the distant point or else dismount their machine guns, bomb racks, armor protection, in order to save weight for additional gasoline tanks, in which event they are useless as fighting planes even if they are thus able to reach their objective.

The proposal to reduce the size of individual capital ships is thus obviously to the advantage of the British Navy and to the disadvantage of the American Navy. With reference to the other naval powers, certain conditions of local geography apply that do not apply in the same measure to the United States or Great Britain. The sea area of greatest moment to Japan is the Western Pacific and connecting seas over which Japan carries on her trade with the Asiatic mainland. Over half her trade is with countries of Eastern Asia and with numerous bases stretching from Hako-date to Formosa. The area is well protected against American or European naval attack. Similarly the sea area of greatest moment to France is the Western Mediterranean, which provides her line of communication with her most important African possessions. To a lesser degree, this is true of Italy.

The principal attributes of a fighting vessel are: (1) offensive power; (2) defensive power; (3) speed; and (4) cruising radius. Offensive power is best illustrated by the main guns of capital ships, although torpedoes, mines and aerial bombs are also used in offensive. Armor protection illustrates defensive power by guns, especially the anti-aircraft and secondary batteries and speed are used in defense. While speed may be used effectively as a defensive measure, it has an independent function of catching up with the enemy and obtaining a favorable position for making an attack. Cruising radius or endurance are needed to reach the critical area and are provided by fuel storage capacity contained within the ship or provided in storage tanks accessible to the ship along its route.

Any given warship represents the designer's best judgment as to the proportion of these various attributes and the selecting of the proper proportion to be devoted to guns, armor, speed and radius is of the greatest importance now that the principle of limiting navies by agreement, particularly as to the maximum tonnage of individual vessels, has been accepted by the five principal naval powers and imposed on a sixth, Germany, by the Treaty of Versailles.

As to the economy plea for the reduction in size of battleships, it should be obvious that increased rather than decreased expenditures would follow the adoption of such a plan. True, a reduction in the size of capital ships, if accompanied by a material reduction

Gen. Hagood on Artillery

West Point and after the split was commissioned in the Coast Artillery. Later he commanded a Field Artillery Brigade for two years in the Philippines.

The fact that he played a major part in securing the enactment of the legislation (Act of Jan. 25, 1907), which separated the Corps gives him a strategic position in now declaring that the conditions which brought about the separation are gone and that the best interests would be served by a reunited artillery. It is interesting to recall, in connection with Gen. Hagood's part in securing the enactment of the legislation of 1907, the following report made in 1915 to the Secretary of War by Maj. Gen. Arthur Murray (formerly chief of both Coast and Field Artillery):

"From my personal knowledge, in each instance, I can state that without the able work of Maj. Johnson Hagood, CAC, before Committees of Congress, and his personal influence with individual members of Congress, and the confidence these committees and members of Congress had in his integrity, neither the Artillery Increase Bill of 1907, the Army Pay Bill of 1908, nor the Extra Officers' Bill of 1911, would have been enacted."

In commenting this week upon the subject, Gen. Hagood said: "The great problem which will confront America in case of another war is the problem of training and placing units of a great army in the field as rapidly as possible after they have been mobilized. In order to do this we must develop in time of peace, a proper mental attitude on the part of young officers and non-commissioned officers towards essentials as distinguished from non-essentials."

"There is no difference between what we call Coast Artillery and what we call Field Artillery in the matter of essentials. We differentiate between them in non-essentials and lay great stress upon these differences, not only in the Regular Army but with National Guards, the ROTC and even the boys of the CMT Camps. In my book called the Services of Supply I proposed a reconstruction and simplification of our Army organization. Included in this was the consolidation of the Coast and Field Artillery."

The summary of Gen. Hagood's article on the subject which appeared in the Coast Artillery Journal of December, 1924, was as follows:

Summary

By an examination of the above quotations and a number of other contemporaneous extracts from Service Journals, annual reports, etc., which have been omitted from this article, we see that the reasons which led to the separation of the Coast and Field Artillery may be summarized as follows:

First.—A number of distinguished in the total allowed tonnage of capital ships, would result in lower naval appropriations, but this would come from the cut in tonnage and in spite of the cut in size.

It is certainly self-evident that the larger the vessel is, the less is its cost per ton. The material going into a smaller vessel would be reduced in quantity, but in the quest of increased effectiveness, naval constructors would seek lighter but more expensive alloys, and applying principles of airplane construction to the building of the smaller vessels. Then, too, many items, such as radio equipment, aircraft, fire-control apparatus, etc., would entail the same cost, regardless of the size of the vessel.

This may be well illustrated by comparing the current cost of a 10,000 ton, 8-inch gun cruiser, which is $17,000,000, with the estimate submitted by the Navy Department to Congress last December, when the Department requested authorization to build a 6-inch gun cruiser of about 6,500 tons. The estimate was over $16,000,000.

By keeping the limit of the Washington Treaty, the replacement of around 525,000 tons in 35,000 ton ships will cost the United States nearly $600,000,000, but by reducing the size of the individual vessel at this replacement figure, the cost of construction would easily mount an additional $200,000,000 or more and the cost of operation in even greater proportion. This rate of increased cost of the smaller vessel would be maintained whatever tonnage would be agreed upon for replacement.

authorities said it should be done, without giving any reasons.

Second.—There was no tactical relation between the horse drawn artillery that accompanied an army in the field and the fixed fortifications of the coast defenses.

Third.—It was not fair to require Coast Artillery officers to learn, and to pass examinations upon, methods of the mobile army, and vice versa for Field Artillery officers.

Fourth.—It was not practicable to have Coast Artillery officers and Field Artillery officers in the same line of promotion.

Fifth.—It was necessary to organize the Field Artillery into regiments and brigades, and this did not fit in well with the corps organization of the Coast Artillery.

Sixth.—The strongest and most logical arguments were presented by Gen. Arthur Murray, who proposed to separate the two arms along the line of their separate functions in time of war.

The Present Situation

Let us see now to what extent these several reasons apply to the present situation.

First.—If the question were to be decided upon a matter of opinion there are more expert witnesses today that would testify in favor of reuniting the artillery than would testify against it.

Second.—The horse is no longer the main idea of the Field Artillery. The model field artilleryman is no longer the man who can execute a counter march at a gallop without knocking down the tent pins. The Coast Artillery and the Field Artillery now meet upon the common ground of the tractor, and the line of cleavage is between the 155-mm. long and the 155-mm. short. The Coast Artillery, in addition to the fixed guns and submarine mines is now assigned to anti-aircraft guns, trench mortars, all motorized artillery of 6-inch long and above and to all railway artillery. The Field Artillery is the divisional artillery. Both belong to the mobile army, and both belong to the system of coast defense.

("This line of cleavage has since been wiped out; both arms now have G. P. F's, as well as 8-inch and 240-mm. Howitzers. Of the movable guns, Railway Artillery and Antiaircraft only remain exclusively with the Coast Artillery. The Field Artillery has all Corps and Army Artillery except Antiaircraft, J. H. 1924.)

It might be said that if the Coast Artillery would give up these mobile army functions, and would turn over to the Field Artillery everything except the fixed guns and submarine mines, the line of cleavage would be as clear as it was heretofore, but this is not true. This would require the Field Artillery to take over some of the railway artillery and we would have two separate branches of the Service armed with the same weapon—say 14-inch guns on railway mounts—one to strike the enemy on the water and the other to strike him when he puts his foot on shore. Present designs of railway artillery are for use against either moving targets on the water or fixed targets on the land. The German long range gun was on a "railway mount," while some of the French 75's on the western front were to all intents and purposes in fixed emplacements. So also were some of the machine gun nests.

Third.—In the scheme of preparing the country against a great war the peace-time regular officer must be prepared to exercise in time of war higher command in any arm where his services are most needed. During the World War the Coast Artillery sent to France a greater percentage of officers than did any other arm. These officers served with "The Mobile Army" and they served with every branch and in almost every capacity from corps commander down. A Coast Artillery officer is the only one in the army to hold all of the three highest American decorations—The Medal of Honor, the Distinguished Service Cross and Distinguished Service Medal. This officer had the unusual distinction of serving in France as Chief of Staff of a division, as a Field Artillery brigade commander, and as an Infantry brigade commander—all with great credit. He got his Medal of Honor in the Philippines while serving with the Signal Corps.

The methods of the Field Artillery in France conformed much more closely to the old Coast Artillery methods than to the old Field Artillery methods. The fundamental principles of artillery fire taught in the schools of the two arms today are the same, as are also some of the details of execution. (Please turn to Page 770)

Rules on Dependents

Accounting Office of ruling adversely in claims for dependent mother allowances, when there is even the possibility of outside income, the decision will very probably cause trouble.

The opinion of the court follows in part:

"There can be no doubt as to the purpose of the statute in question. The additional allowances authorized are intended to be, and are, in the nature of a reimbursement to officers with dependents for expenses incurred by them in the support of such dependents. The statute recognizes the obvious fact that a salary pay adequate for the reasonable support of an officer without dependents, might be wholly inadequate for the support of an officer with dependents. It was the intent and purpose of Congress in the enactment of this statute to relieve officers with dependents from the necessity of bearing the full burden of the support of dependents out of their official salaries."

"The plaintiff in this case contributed nothing to his wife's support during the period for which he claims additional allowances for a dependent wife. He had prior to that time deserted her and during the full period of the claim refused to live with her as his wife. The payment to him of the additional rental and subsistence allowances claimed would not be a reimbursement or a partial reimbursement of expenses incurred by him on account of having a lawful wife but would amount to a bonus pure and simple. Conceding that the plaintiff comes within the letter of the statute, the term 'dependent' shall include at all times and in all places a lawful wife, he manifestly does not come within its spirit nor within the undoubted intentions of its makers. Not being within the spirit of the statute the plaintiff is not within the statute, and cannot recover. Any other construction of the statute would lead to a result so grossly absurd as to 'shock the general moral or common sense.' While the plaintiff had a lawful wife during the period of his claim, he repudiated his moral and legal obligations to provide for her and is in no different position than that of an unmarried fellow officer."

"The plaintiff's petition is dismissed. It is so ordered."

Cavalry Division Maneuvers

Ft. Bliss, Tex.—The 1st Cavalry, under command of Maj. Gen. Ewing E. Booth, will hold its 1931 maneuvers from May 19 to June 2, in the country between Ft. Bliss, the home station of the division, and Alamogordo, New Mexico, 85 miles to the north.

Troops which will participate in these maneuvers are:

Hdq., 1st Cav. Div.; Special Troops, composed of 1st Sig. Troop, Div. Hdqs. Troop, Troop "A," 1st Armored Car Sqdn., and 27th Ord. Co.; the 2nd Cav. Brig., under command of Brig. Gen. W. C. Short and composed of Brig. Hdqs. and Hdqs. Troop, 7th and 8th Cav. Regiments; 1st Cav. Reg.; 1st Bn., 62nd FA; 1st Med. Sqdn.; 1st Cav. Div. Trains, including motor, wagon and pack trains; Troop "B," 8th Engrs.; and AC detachment.

The 1st Cavalry will have to march from Marfa, Tex., to Ft. Bliss, a distance of about 200 miles, in order to participate.

Troop "B," 8th Engineers, marched from Ft. McIntosh to Ft. Bliss, a distance of about 700 miles, in the latter part of February, and is now engaged in mapping part of the maneuver area.

The 1st Cavalry Division maneuver area will include the Hueco and Sacramento Mountains on the east to the Franklin and Organ Mountains on the west, a distance of about 60 miles. The troops of the division will encounter in this area the most rugged country possible to obtain. It varies from the typical desert of sand covered with mesquite and greasewood, where water is scarce and going is difficult, to the mountains 10,000 feet high, where maneuvering is practically impossible for wheeled vehicles and recourse must be had to packing on animals all articles transported.

It is believed that this area presents difficulties which have never before been encountered by our Cavalry in maneuvers, and which will afford an opportunity to demonstrate the indispensability of mounted troops in modern war. These maneuvers will test, practically, many questions of tactics which have arisen as a result of the rapid advancement of science applicable to military operation. Among such questions are: the proper employment of cavalry in mountain warfare; the ability of cavalry to maintain communications with airplanes while engaged in traversing such rough country, and also to so maneuver as to prevent being discovered by hostile airplanes; the use of signal communications; the ability of artillery to keep up with and support cavalry, both in the sandy desert and in the high mountains; the ability of the armored cars to operate over this difficult area; and the powers and limitations of modern inventions such as the radio telegraph and radio telephone, airplanes, weapons, and motor transportation.

These maneuvers will be "free" to a great extent; that is, the troops involved will operate continuously day and night with only brief periods of intermission to allow a certain amount of control. In other words, the troops will simulate conditions of real war as nearly as possible. This introduces the question of supply of all articles needed by the division in war, such as food, forage, water and ammunition, and the necessity of all commanders to know how to conserve the physical strength of men and animals for the final punch to assure success in the field of battle.

These maneuvers are designed to bring out many problems of this kind which have been absent in former maneuvers.

Chaplains Meeting

THE annual meeting of the Chaplains of the Army of the United States is scheduled for Washington on April 14 and 15. Advance notices have been sent out to all concerned and indications point to a real representative attendance for the splendid program which has been arranged by those charged with this responsibility. The sessions will be held on the seventh floor of the Walker-Johnson Building, 1734 New York Ave.

12th Cav. Maneuvers

Ft. Brown, Tex.—During the period March 31 to April 14, 1931, the 12th Cavalry stationed at Fort Brown and Fort Ringgold is in the field for the annual Spring maneuvers and field exercises, under command of Col. Francis W. Glover, 12th Cav.

The maneuvers phase, March 31 to April 4, finds the 12th Cav. (less 2d Squadron) stationed at Ft. Brown operating against the 2d Squadron from Ft. Ringgold, the former under the command of Lt. Col. Stephen W. Winfree, 12th Cav., the latter under command of Maj. Geoffrey Keyes, 12th Cav., with Col. Glover as the Commanding General of each of these forces. The 12th Cav. (less 2d Squadron) (Blues) in an aggressive mission of covering the front of an invading Division is encountering the 2d Squadron (Whites) as a screening force for their Infantry Division whose concentration is not yet completed. The old Military Highway, redolent with the history of Texas since days of the Mexican War, is the axis of movement over which the subsequent battles are fought.

Observation planes are cooperating with both forces and add to the reality of the situations.

Col. Daniel D. Tompkins, 5th Cav., is Chief Umpire, while Maj. Wilfrid M. Blunt, 5th Cav., is attached to the 2d Squadron as umpire and Capt. W. E. Barott, 5th Cav., to the 12th Cav. (less 2d Squadron).

April 3 and 4 Maj. Gen. Edwin B. Winans, accompanied by Col. George P. Tyner, General Staff Corps; Maj. John T. McLane, General Staff Corps, and Capt. Loren F. Parmley, (Cav.), Aide de Camp, were present to witness the maneuvers.

Following the maneuvers, combined field exercises of the 12th Cav. were held in the country to the north of Ft. Ringgold, where the maneuvers phase terminated on April 4. An interesting program for this period was worked out, in which the Regiment defended a river crossing in a locality where in years past this type of action has been a reality. Situations were also scheduled in which the Regiment was utilized in delaying action pending the arrival of their own Infantry, as well as operations where cavalry met cavalry in the mounted action that has distinguished this arm since its origin. The field exercises will conclude April 11 with the Regiment used as the rear guard for a larger force and the return march to home stations will take place on April 13.

Army Construction

He was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal and the French Cross of the Legion of Honor.

Col. Gasser was graduated from the Army War College in 1921 and served as Secretary of the War Department General Staff from Aug. 15, 1921, to April 25, 1925. His name appears on the initial General Staff Eligible List.

Praises the Citadel

GEN. CHARLES P. SUMMERALL, former Chief of Staff of the Army and future President of the Citadel addressed the South Carolina Legislature March 10, expressing his enthusiasm at his new position. Gen. Summerall praised the Citadel for the great work it has done in the training of the youth of the country and in producing men of quality to serve the country in its every phase of business.

"Whenever the name of the Citadel has been uttered it has summoned a vision peculiar to it," stated Gen. Summerall. "I acquired an admiration for it in 1882 when I went to Dr. Porter's school the year after the Citadel reopened. During the years that have followed that memory has been continually refreshed. Constantly I have been associated with Citadel graduates and nothing truer than the age old adage, 'by their fruits shall ye know them.' Everywhere I find Citadel graduates living worthily of their alma mater, burning with pride in its traditions and its significance. It is an institution the influence of which has permeated deeply into the very fabric of our national life, producing men who are serving the public interest honestly, faithfully, capably. I say this not in a spirit of holier than thou. All educational institutions, I believe, have produced public spirited graduates. But there is something peculiar, I believe, in training the youth for the profession of arms that takes mystic form in the lives of men. The Citadel has had it. In its very inception it was established to substitute youth for soldiers in the defense of a great city. Its sponsors followed the inspiration of the code of arms handed down to us from knighthood, teaching men to do noble deeds, teaching service in the bravest, best sense of the term.

"All this has become intensified in the years and today no one can visit the Citadel without a thrill of pride that here is a center of influence from which radiates the best in man."

Inf. Board to Test Masks

MAJ. Gen. Stephen O. Fuqua, Chief of Infantry, has forwarded several gas masks with a universal size face piece, recently developed by the Chemical Warfare Service, to the Infantry Board at Fort Benning, Ga., for a complete field test. The new feature in connection with this mask is that it has a face piece which fits practically all size faces. In addition it affords better protection for the infantryman and simplifies the supply of gas masks. A poor fitting mask invariably results in an injury to the soldier or is at least a drawback to his efficiency. A new mask has already been tested at Edgewood Arsenal, Maryland, by the Chemical Warfare Service. It is hoped that this mask will live up to expectations as it will fill a long felt want and be welcomed by every infantryman.

"When the contention is made that Army officers are underpaid no refutation is possible, for the figures tell the story."—SPRINGFIELD, MASS., NEWS.

WISELY, THE WAR DEPARTMENT has made public eight months before Congress reassembles, the promotion bill, formulated under the direction of the Chief of Staff. Thus, there will be ample time for full consideration of the project by the entire Service, and the exposure of any defects or injustices that may exist. As in the past, the Army and Navy Journal offers its columns for a discussion of the measure, believing that thereby improvements may be developed which will result in a proposal an united personnel can support. It is important that unity be created. Congress, as the past five sessions have revealed, is hopelessly deadlocked. Congressman James, Chairman of the House Military Committee, refused to accept S. 4, adopted by the Senate, or to meet Senator Reed, Chairman of the Senate Military Committee, for the purpose of discussing it. Mr. Reed and his Committee felt that their bill should be the basis of the legislation. Thus the situation demanded the intervention of the War Department, and the Secretary and Chief of Staff, properly estimating it, have prepared for submission a new plan which has a good chance of consideration, provided the Army, as a whole, indicates its approval.

PROMOTION REFORM IS important, not only for the greater efficiency of the Army, but for congressional action in the matter of increased pay for both the land and sea Services. Without formal notice but with evident decision, Congress has declared that promotion and pay are intermingled, and that the latter cannot be determined until the former is settled. It is argued that the approaching deficit at the end of the fiscal year will cause the President and the Congressional leaders to frown upon the revival of the pay increase proposal. Those officials, however, will not run counter to public opinion, and public opinion continues strongly in support of adequate compensation for the rank and file of the Services. So long as it is possible for the argument to be advanced that pay cannot be fixed until the promotion question is adjusted, so long will no action on the former occur. Therefore, by all means, let us have agreement upon a promotion bill so that consideration can be given to pay certainly during the new Congress, which will convene in December.

WE BELIEVE THE TIME WILL COME WHEN American people will awaken to the extent international interests and politics are controlling disarmament proposals and will determine for themselves what their national defense shall be. The cloven hoof, which these interests and politics represent, has clearly appeared as a result of the customs union formed by Germany and Austria, and which, at the instance of France and Great Britain, is to be examined by the League of Nations. The dominating factor in European diplomacy is security, security which means not only protection of existing territory and interests but promotion of the age long ambitions of the respective powers.

The cloven hoof is further revealed by the disruption of the negotiations between France and Italy, caused by the rapprochement between Germany and Austria, which, the French fear may lead to the constitution of a strong Mittel-Europe. Because of the condition of her treasury, of the predominance of her merchant marine, and her rope of naval stations around the world, Great Britain is naturally seeking to have international agreement upon types and their displacement and armament which will be to her advantage. Thus, the latest revival of the proposal to do away with battleships of more than 20,000 tons or guns of a greater caliber than 12 inches. Secretary of State Stimson is holding out for 35,000 tons. Clever propaganda is giving the impression to the world that the United States, which has been the protagonist of disarmament, is holding out for the deadliest weapons of naval war. Even if the disarmament conference next year does not decide the question, it is plain Great Britain will propose another five-year naval holiday in 1935, which will mean that at the end of that period all the battleships possessed by the British and American navies, with two exceptions each, will be more than 20 years of age and consequently back numbers, and the two ships of that type remaining to the former, will be superior to those we have. It is a battle of the pen which is on, and at present the Europeans, led by the British, have the edge.

AGAIN, THE PEACE VALUE of the Armed Services has been demonstrated, this time in connection with the devastating earthquake which wiped out Managua. The promptness with which the Marines and the Army Engineers stationed in Nicaragua established and maintained order, the celerity with which the Navy sent needed personnel and supplies, the steps taken to relieve suffering and to help the people to regain sanity and an opportunity for livelihood, all reflect the high efficiency with which the armed forces met the needs of humanity. What the Army, the Marine Corps and the Navy did for Nicaraguans, when they themselves lost relatives and friends, they did only a short time ago in Santo Domingo, and they have done on numerous occasions in the past. Nor has the nation forgotten the splendid service rendered by the Army in connection with the Mississippi flood. The people are fortunate to have disciplined servants available to relieve distress in time of peace and to act as their first line of defense in time of war.

WE CONFESS TO SOME dissatisfaction with the way in which Army Day publicity was handled. Corps Area and Department Commanders celebrated the event with the efficiency for which they are noted, and the Secretary of War, by personal appearance in New York and at Ft. Myer, did all that could be reasonably expected. On its part, the Army and Navy Journal gave to the event, with the courteous assistance of the officers it quoted, the importance it deserved. The Navy takes care of Navy day in a far more satisfactory fashion, so far as publicity is concerned, and the reason doubtless lies in the activity of the Navy League. The Army has numerous associations allied with it, such as the National Guard, the Reserves, etc., but apparently they were not stimulated to publicity effort, and we heard little or nothing of the Army League. It is to be hoped that greater attention will be paid in succeeding anniversaries to an opportunity to acquaint the people with the value of their Military Service. Former President Coolidge deemed it of sufficient interest to comment upon it, and he did so in a way which is certain to be effective on public opinion.

A Matter of Taste

Waiter: "Did you have coffee or chocolate, sir?"
Major: "I'm not sure, but it tasted like paste."
Waiter: "That was coffee. Our chocolate tastes like glue."

A Rattling Come-Back

ASK THE JOURNAL

SEND your queries to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL QUESTION EDITOR and an answer will be given as soon as possible after receipt either in this column or by mail. Questions relative to living conditions at Army posts or Navy shore stations will be answered in detail by letter.

T. M.—The proposed pay bill drawn up by the Interdepartmental Pay and Personnel Board of last summer provides for the inclusion of both pay and allowances in the one item of pay and which pay is an increase over present pay and allowances. The bill also provides that retired men's pay shall be based upon active pay and this would result in an increase for retired men. Retired enlisted men of the Army are allowed $15.75 by way of allowances in addition to their retired pay. Under laws granting compensation to veteran of the World War a retired man might also receive additional compensation from the Government but the laws governing such compensation are so complicated that unless you give a specific example we would be unable to give you any definite information as to this.

S. L. P.—According to the Finance Department of the Army, you would not be entitled to retire with the pay of a warrant officer, as the law provides that enlisted men of the Army who "served as a commissioned officer prior to Nov. 11, 1918" may, when retired, receive the pay of a warrant officer. Service under this law has been held as dating from the day of acceptance of commission and not from the date on the commission. However, as this is purely a categorical case, it might be worthwhile to make an official inquiry to the Adjutant General's Office, War Department, Washington, D. C., as to this, when you are due to retire.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

The Military Surgeon.—Under the title "Lost! A Vice-President and Others," the April issue of the Military Surgeon comments on the legislation adopted by the last Congress which would withhold the pay of any officer or enlisted man on the active list of the Army who is engaged in any manner with any publication issued by any branch or organization or any military association and which carries paid advertising of firms doing business with the government.

The editorial recounts the story contained in Charles Lamb's "A Dissertation Upon Roast Pig," pointing to the moral that "pigs could be roasted" without burning down houses.

"This truth," the editorial in the Military Surgeon states, "which appears to us absurdly obvious as regards the roasting of pigs, does not seem to be always entirely clear in principle when applied to other matters, even to such wise and sophisticated minds as those of our National Legislators. This brings us at a bound from the early ages of man to the present day and to the application of the method of Bo-bo to the roasting of certain small pigs to the houses of some of the Army Service Journals."

"It may be," the editorial continues, "that some young and enthusiastic officers or agents of some one or more publications have been led to imitate unduly the prevalent methods of commercial high-power salesmanship. If so, it is a fault much to be reprobated, and one which the Secretary of War could and doubtless would promptly suppress as soon as his attention was called to it. That such indiscreet agents could in any way influence the granting of contracts which are by law given to the lowest responsible bidder seems to be so improbable as to suggest the classification of such talk as the common exaggerated patter of commercial salesmanship to which experienced advertisers would give its proper discount."

The title of the editorial is derived from the fact that the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States which publishes the Military Surgeon, had to accept the resignation of Maj. Gen. Merritte W. Ireland, the Surgeon General of the Army, as its vice president, in order to keep him from falling within the prohibitions of the new law.

Soldiers and Sportsmanship.—Brig. Gen. Manus McCloskey, at Ft. Sheridan, sent a message "to our soldier athletes," in his command through The Soldier, which we reprint because, in trenchant words, it epitomizes true sportsmanship and the value of athletics. Here is what the General wrote:

"No man can be a good soldier unless he is in good condition physically."

"No man can be a good athlete unless he is in good condition physically."

"To be a good soldier and a good athlete is a combination well worth striving for."

"In the Corps Area meet now taking place, we see our soldier-athletes, and we are proud of them. They will show us how to play the game of Life—how to be generous in victory and smiling in defeat."

We might add that physical health means mental activity. The Army and the Navy and the Marine Corps as well, through training and games, puts officers and men on their toes. When Congress is considering proposals to reduce appropriations for athletics, including polo, we suggest that it take to heart the sound views expressed by Gen. McCloskey.

DANDRUFF? Men in Uniform—

MEN in uniform must be particularly careful about dandruff.

A "white coat collar" does not go so well at inspection.

To overcome dandruff, there is nothing better than Listerine, the safe antiseptic. Try this treatment if you are troubled this way. It really does the trick.

Just apply Listerine clear. Then massage vigorously. Use it systematically, because dandruff is a germ disease easy to check but often difficult to cure.

You will be most pleased with the results from Listerine for this purpose. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, USA.

Smaller Commissions to Be Used.—Upon the direction of Assistant Secretary of the Navy Jahncke, the appointment division of the Bureau of Navigation is going to secure smaller commissions for issue in the future. When the present stock of certificates is exhausted new ones will be procured which will be 12 by 15 inches in size. The ones on hand are 15 by 20 inches. The ad interim commissions will be even smaller. Some years ago reduced size "gunboat" commissions were used, and a number of these are still on hand. They are letter size—8 by 10½ inches. The latter commissions are now being issued, but it is estimated that it will be a year at least before the new regular certificates will be needed.

New Coast Guard Academy.—The corner stone of the new Coast Guard Academy will be laid May 15 with the Secretary of the Treasury and officers of the service participating. The new academy will overlook the Thames River and the city of New London, Conn., being only a short distance from the present academy which was built on the Ft. Trumbull reservation obtained from the War Department in 1910.

Contract for the construction of the new academy buildings has been awarded to Murch Bros., St. Louis, Mo., calling for completion within 600 days following Jan. 21, 1931. The new academy will cost approximately $2,500,000, of which $1,640,000 was made available immediately by the last Congress. The buildings will be of Colonial architecture.

The Cavalry Journal.—The March-April issue of the Cavalry Journal, the first to appear since the enactment of the new law placing restriction on officers engaged in that type of publication, came from the printers this week. The publication formerly was a quarterly but with the beginning of this year was transformed to a monthly publication. However, only two issues—January and February—were issued on that basis and then decision was made to become a bi-monthly. As explained in the new issue "The six bi-monthly issues per year of the present size give an annual text content about one-third greater than the old quarterly magazine."

The Cavalry Journal will continue under the able editorship of Maj. Oliver L. Hines, Cav., and the Cavalry Association will continue to be officered by officers of the Regular Army, this arrangement being made by dispensing with advertising in compliance with the act of Congress.

"The loss in advertising income," this issue records, "confronts the Association executives with a difficult problem in maintaining the Journal at the desired standard without incurring an annual deficit. It will be necessary to make every possible saving in overhead and to curtail expenditures for trophies. Further, it becomes very desirable to increase income from other sources. This can best be accomplished through the active support of the Association members in increasing circulation and the income from the book department. Officers on duty with National Guard and Reserve units can be of especial assistance in bringing the Association and the Journal to the attention of the officers of their organizations."

"The Journal of the future will more than ever reflect the support of the Association members."

The Cavalry Association and the Cavalry Journal deserve hearty support. We are sure that the service will respond. The headquarters of the Association is at 1624 H street northwest, Washington, D. C.

Mexican Island Awarded to France.—The award to France of Clipperton Island, which lies in 10 degrees 13 minutes north latitude and 109 degrees and 10 minutes west longitude, has aroused a great deal of interest in diplomatic and naval circles. The island is in the Pacific Ocean off the Mexican coast, and thus bisects the line between California and Panama and Panama and Hawaii. The award was made by the King of Italy, who acted as arbiter.

The question has arisen if the Monroe Doctrine is in any way involved. That doctrine is against the extension of European control to American territory. If the island always belonged to France, then probably this government cannot protest. Mexico, however, persists in claiming it, in spite of the Italian decision. It is understood the State Department is making a study of the question to determine whether or not a protest would properly lie. It is not known whether the island could be used as a submarine or aeroplane base, but if so and in the hands of a foreign power it might prove troublesome.

Pacifists Prepare for Geneva.—Pacifists already are preparing for the Disarmament Conference next year. Nation-wide meetings will be held on May 18 at the call of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom for the purpose of approving resolutions urging President Hoover to send "peace-minded" delegates to represent the United States. We do not know what the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom is, or who are behind it, or what, if any, strength it has. There are so many so-called societies that consist of a few men and women, who adopt a pretentious name to help in getting publicity. Of course, President Hoover will send delegates to the conference next year who will think first in terms of the safety of the United States, and not internationally-minded agents, intent upon the sacrifice of our protection for the benefit of other nations. Minorities by persistent activity frequently attain their goal. It might be a good thing for Americans concerned about national defense to hold meetings of their own for the purpose of urging the President to make no further concessions in our military and naval strength, and to take measures to effect the parity on the seas ostentatiously granted us by the London Treaty.

Mr. Longworth's Death Blow to Services.—National defense has lost a valuable friend in the death of Representative Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio, Speaker of the House. While his position as Speaker did not lend itself to many public utterances on behalf of the Army and Navy, in the case of Mr. Longworth actions spoke louder than words. He and Representative W. Frank James, chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, cooperated to the greatest extent in the interest of the committee's program. Mr. Longworth also gave every aid to the chairman of the Naval affairs committee. Particularly helpful to National Defense was Mr. Longworth in the selection of members of the defense committees.

There is one occasion in the history of the Army legislation that will long be remembered. That was in the 69th Congress when Representative Morin, then chairman of the committee, had a particularly important and lengthy calendar. Mr. Longworth gave his greatest help—"recognition"—and between the two a record was made on a calendar Wednesday when Army bills were passed at an average rate of a little more than a minute to a bill, clearing the calendar.

Gen. Pershing to Write Biography.—Gen. Pershing has virtually decided to write the story of his life from his boyhood days to the period covered in his recently published war memoirs, according to a copyrighted article appearing in the New York Times.

Gen. Pershing's boyhood, West Point and frontier experiences, reminiscences of the Spanish-American War, the Philippine insurrection and the Mexican border would furnish the basis for such a volume.

The many colorful activities which this distinguished soldier has engaged in should make a volume of great interest.

Navy Offered to Train British Officers in Lighter-Than-Air.—Following the crash of the British dirigible R-101 in France last October, the Navy Department in an effort to be of help to the British air forces, unofficially extended an offer to train British airship pilots at the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J., it has been learned. In view of the heavy loss of personnel suffered by Great Britain in disaster, the Department, in the spirit of good sportsmanship, informally communicated with Wing Commander L. J. E. Twisleton-Wykeham Fiennes, the British air attaché in Washington, to the effect that if the British Air Ministry should ask it, the Navy would be very glad to give them the full use of facilities at Lakehurst. In reply, Great Britain expressed her appreciation for the offer but said that it would not be necessary to accept it.

SERVICE SPORT NEWS

ARMY WINS LACROSSE GAME

Army lacrossemen defeated the New York University Violets at West Point last Saturday, 5-1. The cadets attack was heavy in the first half, netting them four goals, while Schacter was the Violets' one scorer.

Quinn and Sheridan tallied for the Army early in the opening half, Schacter following with a well-directed shot which went high over Waters' shoulder.

Henry and Call added goals for Army near the close of the half. The latter's goal was the result of a cleverly executed play. Call got within range and passed over his shoulder to Clark. The latter returned the ball to Call, who shot high into the Violet net for the score.

Army scored once more in the second half, when, after twenty minutes of dull playing the cadets tallied on a close-up by Call.

9TH CORPS AREA COURT WINNER
Friday, April 3, at Kezar Pavilion in San Francisco, Calif., the Ninth Corps Area won the basketball title for the Western Division of the Army by defeating Ft. Shafter with a count of 26 to 23.

The series lasted three games. The first game was won by Ft. Shafter, 33 to 25. Lt. Vichules was outstanding man for the entire series, being high point man for his team as well for the evening.

The second game was fast and furious and was marked by the 30th coming from behind in a spurt, taking the lead and holding it. The final score of the second game was 41 to 35. The playing was brilliant and clean.

The third game was bitterly fought and well contested finally ending in the close score of 26 to 23. The fine work of Short for the 9th Corps Area team and the excellent ability of Gilbert contributed materially to the work of their team.

NAVY LOSES OPENER

Navy lost the opening baseball game at Annapolis last Saturday, when they battled for 12 innings, only to have Lehigh force the winning run across, for a 6-5 victory.

The Middies started off with a bang, scoring four times in the opening canto, and then another in the second, but after that Ayer and Layton blanked them for ten innings, each pitching five.

The last half of the ninth inning opened with Navy still a run to the good, but Lehigh tied the score with a single, a sacrifice and an outfield hit.

Navy scored in the first when Ashworth doubled, Hodgkins singled, Fitzgerald and Byng walked, Graham erred for Lehigh on Levertons' bounder, and Hodgkins stole, as did Byng, but the latter stole home.

The Middies' last tally came when Fitzgerald and Hodgkins singled, converting the run on Ashworth's out. Navy had runners on in the fifth, sixth and tenth, but could not push them across.

In the twelfth, Miller and McCarthy singled for Lehigh, Nemetz walked, and Miller scored when the latter was forced out by Graham.

SERVICE SPORTS SUMMARY

Ft. Benning, Ga.—The Benning Doughboys shut the Oglethorpe U. nine out last Friday at Gowdy Field, 2 to 0. Dazzy Holiway pitched a scintillating brand of ball for the soldiers, allowing only one hit—a single by the rival pitcher, Mitchell. Kjellstrom at short played brilliantly, cutting off two potential hits, while Miller did well behind the bat.

The arrival of the visiting troops has brought several good boxers to Benning. Ted Moody and Bobby Green, both welterweights of the 8th Inf., carry good records. The former has seven years experience to his credit, and the latter, although a youngster, has won his last 16 fights. The Webb twins and Ted Lucas hail from Ft. Bragg, 16th FA. Don Webb is a lightweight, and Jack is welterweight. Lucas battles in the middleweight division.

Madison Barracks, N. Y.—The Quartermaster Detachment, which is leading the Post Bowling League, was under heavy pressure April 2 in their contest with Co. A, 28th Inf. The Doughboys were on the verge of lowering the Qm.'s lead, and a defeat would have spelled championship for Battery E, 7th FA, as the horse-soldiers have the same number of games to bowl as the Qm.'s. In the last few frames of the game, the Qm.'s got in a huddle and came out for a victory.

Quantico, Va.—The All-Marine baseball team is off to a very successful start this season. They have won the first three games, defeating University of Vermont 8 to 1; Drexel College, 12 to 5, and University of Delaware, 9 to 1. All three games have been played at Quantico.

Although the teams have been handicapped with undesirable weather and muddy fields, they have shown real spirit and teamwork.

PLAN BOXING SHOW

Ft. Benning, Ga.—An all-star boxing show is being planned for April 15, at Ft. Benning. The occasion is prompted by the presence of visiting troops from other posts.

As planned, the feature bout will bring together John "Corn" Griffin, Tanker, and Johnnie Walker, 6th Cav., Ft. Oglethorpe. The latter has met Gunner DePratt here twice before. Other bouts that are receiving consideration, are Saginaw Seely, Benning, versus Ted Moody, 8th Inf.; Bobby Green, Moody's stablemate, against Rip Tetherton.

The winner of the Walker-Griffin go will probably meet either Cyclone Smith of Benning, or Mickey O'Brien of Ft. Bragg for the 4th Corps Area championship in the light-heavy class. The winner of this title then will compete for the championship of the Army.

ARMY TENNIS

Listing twelve games, including the University of North Carolina, the Army tennis schedule has been released by Maj. P. B. Fleming, Graduate Manager of Athletics at the U. S. Military Academy. Practice has already started, the squad holding daily workouts on three courts laid out in the new skating arena. George Ward, who has coached the Army tennis team for the past two seasons, arrived April 1 and took charge.

Although four letter men were lost through graduation, Ward will have a fair nucleus on which to build the 1931 team. Letter men now at work are John Helms, Ft. Benning, Ga., southpaw captain of the squad; Arthur R. Kerwin, Hollywood, Calif.; Herbert B. Thatcher, Honolulu, and Roger B. Derby, New Orleans, La.

Other experienced players who are expected to develop this year are Bun M. Prabant, Siam, and Blair A. Ford, New Kensington, Pa. They were both on last year's squad. New men coming up from the plebe squad who are expected to push older players for places on the team are Edson Schull, Troy, N. Y., and Royal Reynolds, Denver, Colo.

The complete schedule is:

April 22—Fordham	13—N. Y. Univ.
25—Amherst	16—Swarthmore
28—Haverford	20—Rutgers
May 2—Columbia	23—Lafayette
6—U. of N. C.	27—Wesleyan
9—Lehigh	30—Penn., at Phil.

The Vice President and his party were escorted to the ball by Maj. George S. Patton, Jr., and Mrs. Patton, who entertained at dinner in their honor, having 116 guests, all of whom attended the ball.

"Hunter," the famous old polo pony, was present, in a special stall in the Chinese room.

The dance given by the officer of the Navy and Marine Corps at the Willard Wednesday night added another touch of color and gayety to the week. It was preceded by a number of dinners, among those entertaining were Rear Adm. and Mrs. John Halligan, Comdr. and Mrs. G. S. Burrell, and Comdr. Aguirre.

ice, would have attained the rank of first lieutenant.

In many quarters the question has arisen as to just how much the flow of promotion would be accelerated after the initial promotions—whether or not the initial gain would be the only gain. Those who have been compiling the statistics on the measure say that the flow would be considerably greater than at present. One point made is that the percentage of starred officers (the separation of whom created vacancies) is higher in the upper grades than it is in the hump. Thus, the separation of officers from the upper grades will result in a greater number of promotions in the lower grades, for the unstarred officers are carried along by the starred officers.

The formula on which the War Department accelerated promotion bill is based has been found to work out with actual statistics in a surprising manner. For example: The accuracy of the survivor curve, which is the basis of designation of starred and unstarred officers, was tested by applying it to officers commissioned during six different years. These six years were selected at random and were the only ones tested. The results are shown in the following table:

Year	Officers Commissioned	Survivors Predicted	Actual Survivors
		1930	1930
1890	56	10	12
1896	78	25	26
1900	131	58	53
1903	143	70	72
1906	94	51	51
1910	161	107	113

There is practically no officer now in the Coast Artillery of the grade of captain and above who was not taught the technique of the Field Artillery during the great war, and a great many of them, including the writer (he since commanded a Field Artillery Brigade for two years in the Philippines. J. H. 1924), put this into practical execution by actual service with mobile artillery commands in the AEF.

On the other hand, some years ago when there was a little war scare in the Philippine Islands the Field Artillery was rushed into the seacoast fortifications at Corregidor Island.

In this matter Gov. John A. T. Hull, of Iowa, Chairman of the House Committee on Military Affairs, seems to have had more foresight than did some of the expert witnesses who testified before his committee.

Fourth.—All officers, including the Coast and Field Artillery, are now on one list for promotion, and are by law eligible for assignment to duty with any arm of the service. In order to accomplish the combination, therefore, the only thing that remains to be done is to combine the office of Chief of Field Artillery with that of Chief of Coast Artillery.

Fifth.—There is a strong feeling in the Coast Artillery that it should go back to the old regimental organization for the fixed defenses. (This has since been accomplished. J. H. 1924.)

The French, who had a corps organization for their Artillery Lourde, changed back to a regimental organization during the progress of the war. We already have coast artillery regiments and brigades for the tractor-drawn and for the railway artillery. Some of this of the present writing is assigned exclusively to the mobile army, and its relation to the coast defenses is the same as that of any other mobile army units. The combination into one corps of all artillery would in no wise handicap the organization of the so-called Field Artillery into units best suited to its operation.

Six.—Now as to Gen. Murray's very able presentation of the argument along functional lines. It has been shown in Third above that a line of demarcation can no longer be drawn between the artillery of position for use against naval targets on the one hand and artillery of movement for use against land targets on the other. Just now the line is drawn between the divisional artillery on the one hand and the army and corps artillery on the other.* It is hard to see how anyone could defend a system by which officers of one branch of the army are trained for one of these purposes and officers of another branch are trained for the other. In effect this would mean that the Field Artillery was subordinate to the Coast Artillery. It would be like saying that the Infantry training should stop with the school of the battalion while the Cavalry training should take care of the regiment and of the brigade. The commander of the corps and army artillery, a coast artilleryman, would be chief of corps artillery and army artillery, respectively. (*This distinction has since been wiped out. J. H. 1924.)

Artillery is all artillery now and one cannot make fine distinctions between calibers or measure it out between the two services by the length of the 6-inch gun.

No one can tell what the future holds but unless experience is a false prophet all of our present artillery models and methods are on the rapid road to junk. The two branches of the artillery should be reunited and the best talent of both arms combined in solving the difficult military problems of the future. Many will agree with me that the most important and the most difficult of these lie entirely outside of the ordinary peace time training and administration of the Regular Army.

Lake City about June 15; to Naval Academy.

Starring of Captains

FOLLOWING is the list of captains

(as of July 1, 1930), showing how they would have been starred and unstarred if the War Department accelerated promotion plan had gone into effect July 1, 1930. It will be recalled that under the plan starred officers would fill vacancies occurring in the higher grades, but they would carry with them the unstarred officers preceding them on the list. (The list of majors, lieutenant colonels and colonels will be published next week.)
